"Up the Ladder with Tom Rowline" at the Bijou today is worth seeing. The principal point of interest about this picture is that the naval department granted permission to use the government ships and the government officers and men wherever necessary, and numerous little touches of naval life are introduced which have never before been shown in public. Practically everybody will enjoy it, merely because it is true to the life of the navy and represents actual scenes therein. The little love story that is interwoven adds zest to the picture and makes it seem like a page from the life of a real man.

MRS. C. G. MASCOTT SHOT DEAD IN HER HOME BY YOUTH

victim, came to Barre from his home in the Maitland Islands four years ago, coming naturally to Barre where his brother John had been with Mr. Mascott for some time. He had been here four years. The two Mikales boys and the Mascotts are not related, but the older boy had worked for Mr. Mascott for ten years and is highly esteemed by his employer. James left home because he could not get along with his stepmother. He has a father, two sisters, an half brother, all living in the "old country" and the brother, John, who lives in Barre.

John Mikales' Strange Dream.

A somewhat strange feature of the tragedy is a dream which John Mikales had last Friday night. He dreamed that his brother, James, was carrying a revolver and that he displayed it at one time when Mr. Mascott was around. "What are you doing with that? Where did you get it?" demanded Mr. Mascott of the boy, as the dream appeared to him. He rather startled both John and Mr. Mascott that the boy should be in possession of a revolver, and the latter told him not to carry it. John forgot all about the affair until yesterday's startling events, when the somewhat prophetic dream came to his mind.

James' Regard for Mrs. Mascott.

An incident which indicates that James thought a great deal of Mrs. Mascott was his going to a local photographer, Miss Cora Judd, with a small picture of Mrs. Mascott with the request that the photographer put the picture on a pillow-cover. This work was done by Miss Judd and the pillow-cover was turned over to the young man, being then presented by him to Mrs. Mascott, as indicated by the fact that a few days subsequently Mrs. Mascott met Miss Judd on the street and complimented her on the work of transferring the picture to the cloth. Miss Judd says that she was somewhat afraid of the young fellow when he called at her studio, as he acted strangely.

So far as known, Mrs. Mascott had treated James in the same manner she would treat any one of her husband's employees and a member of her household; but it is said that besides his complaints to Mrs. Woodhouse, James had felt aggrieved that she had paid more attention to the others in the store than to him.

Mrs. Mascott had a wide acquaintance in Barre and all her friends were shocked at the tragedy. By all of them she was held in high esteem. She was a member of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Episcopal), of the Barre lodge, New England Order of Protection, and only two weeks ago last Wednesday had joined Bright Star Rebekah lodge of this city. She was an enthusiastic worker in all the organizations with which she was affiliated. She was a woman of striking appearance and by many regarded as handsome.

She had been married to Mr. Mascott for six years, they having become acquainted in Burlington, where Mr. Mascott conducted the Crystal Palace and his wife, then Miss Kelley, worked in the store. She was very popular in Burlington, as well as in Barre. Their marriage occurred on January 28, 1903.

Mrs. Mascott was 29 years old on the fourth day of the present month. She is survived by her husband and two children in his city and by her mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Kelley, two sisters, Miss Mabel and Mrs. Josephine Tobin, and three brothers, John, James and Theodore Kelley, all of Burlington. Theodore lived for a time in this city. All her Burlington relatives came to Barre this morning except Mrs. Tobin, who is expected later.

The funeral will be held from the Church of the Good Shepherd tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, the Rev. W. J. M. Beattie officiating. The body will be taken on the 3:00 train to Burlington, where a short service will be held at Lakeview chapel, with the Rev. Dr. George Y. Bliss of Burlington and the Rev. W. J. M. Beattie of Barre officiating.

Barton's Granite.

The Times, or any one not knowing the circumstances, might look at the capital of $3000 of the Barton Granite Promoting Co., as insignificant when the development of a granite industry is compared to locate in here. The quarry used to aid and induce granite cutting concerns to locate in town, he quarry is already developed to quite an extent many thousands of dollars worth of stone having been shipped to sheds in other places, one concern having placed enough of the Barton brand on the market so that he is receiving orders calling for "Barton granite." One concern has already been induced to locate here and the shed is already being built, others desire to come and we believe the day is not far distant when Barton will figure as one of the granite towns of Vermont. The quality of the stone has been tried and found good. The stone is going to be used and Barton proposed to have that stone cut in town and the money spent in town. Watch the development of the granite business in Barton.—Barton Monitor.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Have you had our mercerized hose? Ask to see them at Vaughan's.

A horse belonging to Dr. A. H. H. Lewis and driven by Mrs. Lewis made a lively get-away down Main street this forenoon. Mrs. Lewis got out of the wagon near the Trow & Holden shops on South Main street to adjust the bridle and the horse took advantage of the stop and started down the street at a lively pace. The animal proceeded down the street to Smith & Cumings' market, where a collision with a heavy wagon nearly stopped the outfit and the horse was captured easily. The only damage was a broken whistletree.

There are some excellent values in this sale, and the people are getting interested, as shown by Saturday's bidding. Remember the Sale closes tomorrow, Tuesday noon, July 27, so get your bids in today and watch the window.
